

The New York Times

13 Actors to See Onstage — No Matter What They're In

The performers who have transformed New York theater.

By Jesse Green

April 17, 2026

Susannah Flood

Sara Krulwich/The New York Times

Flood, 43, is a true expert at confusion, a good thing because she often plays characters like the twisted-in-knots Lizzie in Bess Wohl's "Liberation" (above, 2025). What makes that confusion thrilling is how she grounds it not in a lack of information or purpose but, just like real life, in an excess of both.

Full Article: <https://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2026/04/17/t-magazine/actors-theater-new-york-broadway.html>